Bridging the gap between storytelling and action

Snapshots: Climate Migration

“In 2018, The World Bank projected that by 2050, climate change could create over 140 million internally displaced people in developing regions across the globe”.

~Alice Hill and Leonardo Martinez-Diaz, 2020

Project Objectives

Snapshots: Climate Migration

1 Questions:

How are areas in the world influenced by climate migration?

What solutions have been implemented?

Where can we, our communities, the world do better?

How can we take one communities story to help benefit the future?

How can we amplify voices on both sides of the decision making paradigm?

2

Compiling Stories

Northern British Columbia, Nepal/India, Vancouver Island

3

Sharing Stories and transferring knowledge to help global climate migration preparedness

Promote projects, initiatives, campaigns and happenings from NGO's/Not-for-profits/government/public sector

Promote and amplify voices of those in need to inform needs based learning and understanding outcomes.

Our “Bible”: Accountable Journalism

These are not our stories to tell, but we want to facilitate the transfer of knowledge through adhering to the principles of Ethical Journalism.

- 1 Truth and Accuracy
- 2 Independence
- 3 Fairness and Impartiality
- 4 Humanity
- 5 Accountability

We intend to adhere to standards laid out in the Canadian Association of Journalists Ethics Guidelines* when working with stories, ongoing initiatives and sources.
